ACADEMY HIGH WELCOMES SOCIAL STUDIES FACULTY MEMBER JORDAN CONERTY

Jordan Conerty is passionate about engaging students, deepening their intellectual curiosities, and developing their essential skills. He joins the faculty at Academy High with wide experience teaching in the humanities. Before coming to Academy High, Mr. Conerty taught in the religion and sociology departments at Maryville College in Maryville, Tennessee. Prior to that he taught philosophy and geography at the Taft School in Watertown, Connecticut and served as a graduate teaching fellow in the history and economics departments at Yale University in New Haven, Connecticut. While an undergraduate and graduate student, Mr. Conerty also led high adventure programming for the Boy Scouts of America at the Florida National High Adventure Sea Base in the Florida Keys.

Mr. Conerty earned a Bachelor of Arts in Religion, Political Science, and Geography from Augustana College in Rock Island, Illinois and a Master of Divinity from Yale University in New Haven, Connecticut. He also completed a certificate in Educational Leadership and Ministry from Berkeley Divinity School in New Haven, Connecticut.

Mr. Conerty, originally from Woodstock, Illinois, recently relocated to Mahomet, Illinois, where he lives with his wife. Besides teaching Mr. Conerty enjoys hiking anywhere he can, reading books that make him feel uncomfortable, listening to music, training for half marathons, and exploring Champaign County.

Academy High thanks Annie Tock Morisette for her many contributions as our inaugural Social Studies teacher and indoor soccer coach and wishes her well as she returns to finish her PhD at the University of Maine.
